

It's intuitive!

Obvious question:

If the items are labeled, why couldn't we just count the number of defective wrenches that came from Mach2 and divide by the total number that came from Mach2?