

What is Classification?

Classification: a Machine Learning technique to identify the category of new observations based on training data.

